

Press release
March, 2025

Centaurium Aviation becomes a sales partner of Guimbal Cabri G2 helicopter

Dallas, March 12, 2025

Centaurium Aviation Ltd., an independent representative of Bell Flight in Switzerland and a comprehensive helicopter service provider, is expanding its product portfolio with Guimbal Hélicoptères and becoming an official sales agent for the Guimbal Cabri G2 helicopter in Switzerland and internationally.

Effective immediately, Centaurium Aviation Ltd. is adding a lightweight training helicopter to its product range and is now a new sales agent for the Guimbal Cabri G2 in Switzerland as well as internationally.

“With this step, we are closing the gap in the market for a small, two-seater training helicopter for flight schools, helicopter companies, and private individuals,” says Ivan Schmidhalter, CEO of Centaurium Aviation Ltd. “Flight schools in Switzerland are increasingly looking for alternatives with reduced noise emissions for their training operations. With its fully articulated bearingless three-blade main rotor and Fenestron® tail rotor, the G2 is perfectly suited for flight schools, businesses, and private users. Featuring a high-quality, modern cockpit, crash-tested seats, and numerous additional options, this helicopter is a perfect addition to our existing portfolio.”

“We are delighted to have gained Centaurium Aviation Ltd. as a strong and established helicopter partner in Switzerland,” says Bruno Guimbal, Chairman and CEO Hélicoptères Guimbal.

Two brand-new Cabri G2 helicopters, already in production, will be available for interested flight schools, operators, and private individuals starting in September 2025.

From left to the right:

Bruno Guimbal - President Hélicoptères Guimbal and George Tsalalidis, Managing Director, South of the Alps – Centaurium Aviation Ltd. at the Verticon trade show in Dallas, Texas

For further information please contact Ivan Schmidhalter, CEO – Centaurium Aviation Ltd., ivan.schmidhalter@centaurium-aviation.com