Salus Aviation Strengthens Executive Leadership Team with Key Appointment in Supply Chain

Auckland, New Zealand – October 2025– Salus Aviation is proud to announce the appointment of Katrina Amiria as General Manager – Supply Chain, marking a significant expansion of the company's Executive Leadership Team.

Katrina brings more than 35 years of experience in the aviation sector, beginning her career as an avionics apprentice with Air New Zealand. She has held senior leadership positions across engineering, customer service, and operations — including over a decade managing the Rockwell Collins New Zealand Service Center. She later returned to Air New Zealand to oversee their Cost Per Flight Hour (CPFH) contracts and repair cycle programs.

Her deep understanding of both the business and the industry, along with a strong customer focus and operational expertise, position her to lead and evolve Salus Aviation's global supply chain strategy.

"Katrina's appointment reflects our commitment to building a world-class leadership team," said Greg Edmonds, CEO of Salus Aviation. "Her proven track record in aviation operations and supply chain management brings immense value to our global organisation as we continue to grow and innovate."

In her new role, Katrina will oversee the delivery, quality, and efficiency of all supply chain activities across Salus Aviation's operations in New Zealand, the USA, and South Africa. She views the supply chain as a critical enabler of success across every part of the business, from maintenance and overhaul to aircraft sales and customer support.

"At Salus Aviation, our strength lies in our people and our ability to deliver integrated, end-to-end aviation solutions," added Edmonds. "With Katrina leading our supply chain operations, we are well-positioned to enhance service performance and deliver even greater value to our customers worldwide."
